Cases of Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan and Uzbekistan

Nargiza Abdullaeva examines student migration phenomenon from Central Asia to Germany. In her research she combines inimitably three levels of analysis: micro level explores Central Asian students' and graduates' individual characteristics, their life courses before and during their studies in Germany, students' return/non-return intentions after graduation in Germany and their motivations. Meso level deals with circular migration and social remittances' transfer, and the macro level looks into policy mechanisms on the part of sending Central Asian republics and Germany as a receiving country. The findings reveal that the student migration serves as a realistic channel for the out-migration of highly qualified people (brain-drain) and that the brain circulation practically does not exist.
